SUBJECT: #23-24-05 – Online B.S. in Criminal Justice

The Curriculum Committee recommends the approval of the online B.S. in Criminal Justice program curriculum proposal.

The faculty of the criminal justice department is proposing a one hundred and twenty (120) credit hour, Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice - Online program. This program would be delivered in a 100% online format. This new program would share curriculum and resources with our existing Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice program which will continue to be offered primarily in a face to face format. The only major difference between the two programs will be the modality of course delivery and an adjustment to some of the classes required. For example, students in the online program will be required to take a specific core curriculum course to meet the freshmen seminar requirements.

Curriculum Proposal for Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice - Online

Name of Institution: Fairmont State University
Date: 10/10/2023
Title of Degree of Certificate: Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice – Online
Location: Online
Effective Date of Proposed Action: Fall 2024

Summary Statement:

The faculty of the criminal justice department is proposing a one hundred and twenty (120) credit hour, Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice - Online program. This program would be delivered in a 100% online format. This new program would share curriculum and resources with our existing Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice program which will continue to be offered primarily in a face to face format. The only major difference between the two programs will be the modality of course delivery and an adjustment to some of the classes required. For example, students in the online program will be required to take a specific core curriculum course to meet the freshmen seminar requirements.

Many criminal justice agencies are facing staffing shortages that have a negative impact for the agency as well as society. Policing is at the forefront of this problem. In a 2019 study the Police Executive Research Forum (PERF) found that 86% of police departments surveyed reported that they were understaffed.¹

The demand for online programs and greater flexibility in course modality has grown over the past few years. From 2012 to 2019 enrollment in U.S. universities had dropped by approximately two million students. However, during that same time period the number of students in online classes increased by about the same amount.² In recent years demand was bolstered by the COVID-19 pandemic. This demand has continued following the end of the pandemic. The 2023 report on Changing Landscapes of Online Education (CHLOE) demonstrated the continuing trend. In the report Ron Legon, a senior editor with CLOHE stated “For many institutions struggling with enrollment and revenue levels, success in building online capacity may spell the difference between viability and crisis in the next decade”.³ We see elements of this trend already in our existing traditional Criminal Justice program. Over the last few years, when we offer both a face-to-face and an online section of a class in the same term the online section has had higher enrollment in almost every case.

Being able to offer all courses both face-to-face and fully online will allow the Criminal Justice program to attract a wider range of students as we will not be locked geographically. As the population of WV continues to shrink, having a fully online option widens our reach within and outside of the state. We will also be better positioned to attract non-traditional students, many of whom may already work in the field in some capacity. Many entry-level criminal justice positions do not require a degree. In addition, many careers in the field have a variable work schedule which can make attending a traditional program difficult. In addition, those already working are less likely to commute long distances. Making an online option preferable. With a fully online option we have an opportunity to attract applicants already working in the field who seek advancement and from a wider area.

We anticipate that this program will have synergy with the recently created Fairmont State Police Training Academy and our existing online MS in Criminal Justice program which is in the process of developing a 4 plus 1 program.

Program Description and Characteristics

Program Objectives:

Students who complete the BS in Criminal Justice - Online Program will share learning outcomes with the traditional BS in Criminal Justice program. However, the online program will be evaluated separately by focusing on the students in the online program. These outcomes align with the standards put forth by Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences⁴. Students will be able to:

1. Summarize the history, function, practices, and philosophical/ theoretical viewpoints of law enforcement and correctional agencies in the United States. (Aligns with content areas law enforcement, and corrections in the ACJS standards).
2. Explain the basic concept of constitutional law relating to criminal procedure. (Aligns with content area law adjudication in the ACJS standards).
3. Explain the source and origin of criminal law with a focus on the scope, purpose, and definition of criminal law; as well as the structure, function and operation of criminal courts and the adjudication process. (Aligns with content area law adjudication in the ACJS standards).
4. Identify ethical issues related to criminal justice issues/ work and apply ethical philosophies toward the identification of solutions. (Aligns with section B.6 of ACJS standards).
5. Explain the major components of criminological theories and their impact on criminal justice policy. (Aligns with content area criminological theory in the ACJS standards).
6. Apply quantitative and qualitative research methodologies to the study of criminal justice and/or criminology through the development of a research study. (Aligns with content area research and analytic methodology in the ACJS standards).
7. Apply research studies and/or legal doctrine to evaluate issues and policy related to the criminal justice field. (Aligns with content area administration of justice in the ACJS standards).

The programs mission statement is “The Criminal Justice Program acknowledges its relationship to the College of Liberal Arts and the Department of Social Science and the interdisciplinary nature of its discipline and seeks through its curriculum to provide students with a broad foundation of knowledge grounded in the social and behavioral sciences. The program further seeks to provide majors with an understanding of the functions, roles and critical issues associated with law enforcement, corrections and the courts.” The mission statement like the outcomes is shared with the face-to-face program.

See Appendix A for a curriculum map and a breakdown of assessment.

The United States Department of Education, National Center for Education Statistics (NCES), Classification of Instructional Programs (CIP) that is relevant to this proposal is 43.0104. Described as “A program that focuses on the criminal justice system, its organizational components and processes, and its legal and public policy contexts. Includes instruction in criminal law and policy, police and correctional systems organization, the administration of justice and the judiciary, and public attitudes regarding criminal justice issues.”

Catalog Description:

Criminal Justice examines the structure, functions, and decision-making processes of agencies that deal with crime and criminal offenders. Faculty in this program provide expertise in law enforcement, investigations, corrections, criminal law and theory. Students with a B.S. degree in criminal justice qualify for employment in city, county, state and federal criminal justice agencies, and in the private industrial security field. A number of graduates continue their education in graduate programs in criminal justice, criminology or law.

Total Credit Hours:

This will be a Bachelor of Science degree and will require 120 semester hours to complete.

Program Length:

This program will normally take 4 to 6 years to finish. The length varies depending on If the student is part or full time.

Primary Target Audience:

The target audience for this program will be individuals who are not traditionally being served by our existing criminal justice program at Fairmont State University. Including individuals who are looking for more flexible degree options that allow them to work and meet other responsibilities that would make it difficult to pursue a residential/ face-to-face program. Thus, the program will be primarily aimed toward both part-time and full-time non-traditional students who are working.

Many entry-level criminal justice positions do not require a degree. However, they are often required to advance in the field. In addition, many careers in the field have a variable work schedule which can make attending a traditional residential program difficult. Due to these factors individuals already working in the field are less likely to commute long distances. Making an online option preferable. With a fully online option for our criminal justice degree we have an opportunity to attract applicants already working in the field who seek advancement and from a wide area.

We have an in-house source of recruitment with the Fairmont State Police Training Academy which welcomed its first class of cadets in the Spring of 2023. Some of these cadets are Fairmont State Students. However, many come from policing agencies from across the State of West Virginia and do not have prior college experience. Upon graduating from the Academy cadets receive credits toward our criminal justice degree. This gives them a head start on their degree. A fully online degree option would allow the criminal justice department to continue to serve these students regardless of where they are in West Virginia.

We also expect the program to attract student in and outside of our traditional geographical recruitment locations that would benefit from a more flexible degree option.

Modality:

The program will be fully online. Delivered in an asynchronous format. This will allow the program to be flexible.

Admissions Standards:

In accordance with the general standards for enrollment at Fairmont State University, applicants will be required to have at least a 2.0 high school grade point average (GPA) and an 18 ACT composite or 950 SAT total score (870 combined Critical Reading and Math scores taken prior to March 2016) or at least a 3.0 high school GPA and SAT or ACT composite regardless of the score. The online program will have the same admission standards as the existing face-to-face program.

Performance Standards:

In accordance with the general standards for enrollment at Fairmont State University, students in the program will be required to meet satisfactory academic progress in order to progress and complete the program. Students must meet the following cumulative GPA requirements.

- Undergraduate students must meet the following cumulative GPA requirements:
 - 01-29 attempted credit hours — minimum cumulative GPA ≥ 1.5
 - 30-59 attempted credit hours — minimum cumulative GPA ≥ 1.8
 - 60 attempted credit hours and above — minimum cumulative GPA ≥ 2.0
- In addition, all undergraduate and graduate students must be successfully completing 67% of all hours attempted (attempted credits include all graded courses, transferred courses, testing credits, pass/fails, and repeats).

Institutional Planning for the Program and Projected Resource Requirements

Planning Process:

Preliminary discussion regarding the development of an online criminal justice program began prior to the COVID-19 pandemic as the faculty in the criminal justice department noticed signs of increased demand for online course offerings from our existing students. When discussing ways to grow our program the possibility of creating a fully online option was proposed. No decision was made until the Fall of 2022 when the faculty in the program agreed to present an intent to plan for the creation of the program. The intent to plan was submitted to academic affairs in the Fall of 2022. However, as the intent to plan was presented at the end of October of 2022 we had missed the internal deadlines for submission. In the Fall of 2023 the intent to plan was updated after multiple faculty meetings to discuss the program, and submitted to academic affairs on 9/25/2023. It was presented at the Board of Governors/ Academic Affairs meeting on 10/2/2023.

Program Administration: Describe the administrative organization for the program and explain what changes, if any, will be required in the institutional administrative organization.

The program will be under the direction of the Social Science Department in the College of Liberal Arts. A faculty member should be assigned as coordinator for the program to oversee administrative issues that may be unique to the program due to the online delivery format. The coordinator would be the primary advisor for students in the program. In addition, the coordinator along with the department chair would work to ensure the quality of the program by ensuring all faculty teaching in the program are trained appropriately and that courses are peer evaluated in order to meet our desired quality standards. The creation of the coordinator position would be the only change to program administration.

Program Projections:

We expect the program to serve our existing students who would like more flexibility and online course offerings. An analysis of our online and face-to-face course offering over the last few years suggests that the creation of an online program would require few resources beyond what we currently use. The goal is to reach an enrollment of 50 for the program over the next 5 years. Students served by the program will include the following. A conservative estimate of the headcount of students served is provided in form 1. This is based on the current number of students who take online courses from our program:

- CJ students enrolled in the primarily face to face program that want to take occasional online courses that could benefit from the enhanced flexibility. The majority of the students in the existing primarily face-to-face program take some of the coursework online.
- Students from other disciplines that often take our criminal justice classes. Including political science, sociology, national security and intelligence and cyber security that could benefit from the enhanced flexibility.
- Students taking core curriculum courses online that are part of the program. Such as CRIM 1100 and CRIM 2212.
- Students enrolled in the fully online program.

After the initial 5 years the program will be assessed to determine if additional resources are needed to support the program.

Faculty Instructional Requirements:

The program will share faculty with the existing criminal justice program (BS in Criminal Justice, MS in Criminal Justice). Currently the faculty in the criminal justice program teach in our existing traditional program in both traditional face-to-face and online modalities. Most of those faculty also teach online in our online MS program.

1. There are currently six full time faculty members that teach in the program.
2. No new faculty will be required initially. But as the program grows additional faculty resources may be needed. We already offer many of our classes online and give our students many online options. The criminal justice department already offers many of its classes online.

Library Resources and Instructional Materials:

The Universities Ruth Ann Musick Library provides access to a large variety of resources for our students. The databases available online offer everything needed to support the program. Students will have access to full library services by accessing their Fairmont State web portal. Including a large selection of eBooks and journal databases. The following databases are of particular relevance to our students; Academic Search Ultimate, CQ Researcher, Points of View Reference Center, HeinOnline Academic, EBSCO host electronic journal services, CQ Researcher, JSTOR, LexisNexis Academic/Nexis Uni, Project Muse and ProQuest Central. In addition, students may access additional materials through Interlibrary Loan (ILL).

Support Service Requirements:

No additional support services will be required. Students will have access to existing University services such as IT. All students in the program will be enrolled into a non-credit onboarding course shell developed by the criminal justice faculty. Part of the purpose of the onboarding program will be to connect students with resources they need to succeed in the program.

Facilities Requirements:

No new space or remodeling/ renovation of existing space will be required.

Operating Resource Requirements:

Few additional resources will be needed. Some restructuring of faculty duties may be appropriate, but no new faculty are required to launch the program. It would be beneficial for the program to make one faculty member director or coordinator of the program. If created, new duties would be similar to those conducted by graduate program coordinators. The director would work closely with the chair of the department to ensure the success of the program and would advise the students in the program as they would have unique needs along with any faculty assigned directly to the program.

It should be noted that most costs would be shared across the already existing face-to-face/traditional criminal justice program and the graduate program. The creation of this program will not require many new resources internally. This is because we already offer many classes online. From 2017 to 2022 the number of classes provided online each semester accounted for 37% of courses offered. Some of this is the result of an increase in online teaching due to the Covid-19 pandemic. Pre-pandemic the department put an average of 25% of its classes online from 2017 - 2019. From Spring 2017 to Fall 2022 the average number of undergraduate criminal justice classes offered in a semester was 35. This excludes independent studies and directed research classes.

The table provides a sample course rotation. The split in online and face to face classes has been kept close to the average for the program over the last few years. Which has ranged from about 40 to 45% of courses being offered online. The sample course rotation was set up to demonstrate that we can offer all of our needed courses both online and face-to-face over the course of the rotation. Required courses would be on a two-semester rotation. While elective courses would operate on a three-semester rotation. This demonstrates that both programs could be run with very few additional costs over our current labor budget as new faculty will not be required.

Curriculum

Program Learning Outcomes:

This new program would share curriculum and resources with our existing Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice program which will continue to be offered primarily in a face to face format. The only major difference between the two programs will be the modality of course delivery and an adjustment to some of the classes required. For example, students in the online program will be required to take a specific core curriculum course to meet the freshmen seminar requirements.

Students who complete the BS in Criminal Justice - Online Program will share learning outcomes with the traditional BS in Criminal Justice program. However, the online program will be evaluated separately by focusing on the students in the online program. These outcomes align with the standards put forth by Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences⁵. Students will be able to:

1. Summarize the history, function, practices, and philosophical/ theoretical viewpoints of law enforcement and correctional agencies in the United States. (Aligns with content areas law enforcement, and corrections in the ACJS standards).

2. Explain the basic concept of constitutional law relating to criminal procedure. (Aligns with content area law adjudication in the ACJS standards).
3. Explain the source and origin of criminal law with a focus on the scope, purpose, and definition of criminal law; as well as the structure, function and operation of criminal courts and the adjudication process. (Aligns with content area law adjudication in the ACJS standards).
4. Identify ethical issues related to criminal justice issues/ work and apply ethical philosophies toward the identification of solutions. (Aligns with section B.6 of ACJS standards).
5. Explain the major components of criminological theories and their impact on criminal justice policy. (Aligns with content area criminological theory in the ACJS standards).
6. Apply quantitative and qualitative research methodologies to the study of criminal justice and/or criminology through the development of a research study. (Aligns with content area research and analytic methodology in the ACJS standards).
7. Apply research studies and/or legal doctrine to evaluate issues and policy related to the criminal justice field. (aligns with content area administration of justice in the ACJS standards).

Program Content:

Below the program requirements for the criminal justice – online program are presented.

Cooperative Arrangements:

Although not deemed necessary for the start of this program the department will explore articulation agreements with other relevant community colleges and universities.

Evaluation

Assessment:

The Criminal Justice- Online Bachelor of Science program will conduct periodic programmatic assessment using developed program outcomes and identifying direct measures of those outcomes. The learning outcomes approach provides for review of individual courses and programs and provides a means for determining direction or re-direction as necessary. The program will be reviewed on a yearly basis. Each program learning outcome will be measured with a combination of direct and indirect measures. In addition, the outcomes of all courses will be assessed every year.

The following program learning outcomes will be used. These are the same outcomes used for the existing face-to-face program. This is a deliberate decision as we want to offer our online students the same learning opportunities as the students in our traditional face-to-face program. Each learning outcome was crafted to meet Academy of Criminal Justice Science (ACJS) certification standards. Most of the structure needed for assessment already exists due to our work with the traditional program. All outcomes already have measures that link to specific course work, capstone work, and student self-assessment surveys.

1. (Meets the following ACJS Certification Standards: Administration of Justice, Police, Corrections) Summarize the history, function, practices, and philosophical/ theoretical viewpoints of law enforcement and correctional agencies in the United States.
2. (Meets the following ACJS Certification Standards: Law Adjudication) Explain the basic concept of constitutional law relating to criminal procedure.
3. (Meets the following ACJS Certification Standards: Law Adjudication) Explain the source and origin of criminal law with a focus on the scope, purpose, and definition of criminal law; as well as the structure, function and operation of criminal courts and the adjudication process.
4. (Meets the following ACJS Certification Standards: Ethics) Identify ethical issues related to criminal justice issues/ work and apply ethical philosophies toward the identification of solutions.
5. (Meets the following ACJS Certification Standards: Criminological Theory) Explain the major components of criminological theories and their impact on criminal justice policy.
6. (Meets the following ACJS Certification Standards: Critical Thinking, Writing, and Oral Expression, Administration of Justice, Police, Corrections) Demonstrate the ability, through written and oral communication, to integrate knowledge acquired from core courses to analyze contemporary issues in criminal justice and related disciplines.
7. (Meets the following ACJS Certification Standards: Research and Analytic Methods) Apply quantitative and qualitative research methodologies to the study of criminal justice and/or criminology.

The program faculty will also routinely assess the quality of the program and online delivery. This will entail:

- A. Meeting internal goals for faculty training and development. These standards are discussed later in this document.
- B. Comparing program assessment results between the traditional face-to-face program and the online program.
- C. Peer review and approval of all courses offered within the program with regular reapproval after four years.
- D. Close review of course evaluations by faculty teaching courses and the department chair.
- E. Routinely surveying students in the program to assess other areas of the program related to quality; such as availability of faculty, faculty advising

Additionally, the program will be assessed in greater detail as part of the 5 year review process. At which time the viability and success of the program will be assessed using various metrics.

Evaluation procedures:

The program will be evaluated on a yearly basis. Course learning outcomes as well as additional data collected from surveys of students currently in the program and who graduate from the program will be used to assess the program. See Appendix A for a detailed assessment plan that includes learning outcomes, measures, and performance goals. In addition, Appendix B provides the master syllabi for the required courses in the program. This includes mapping of the course outcomes to the program outcomes with relevant measures.

Faculty Training

Faculty teaching in the program will be required to have completed the “applying the QM Rubric” training offered by Quality Matters. Any additional requirements that are established by Fairmont State University will also be required. In addition, all classes will need to pass an internal department review to confirm that the course meets Quality Matters and additional internal standards of quality. Classes will go through the review process every five years after initial approval. This mirrors current standards established by Quality Matters. The CJ faculty have already started the process of internally peer reviewing our online course offerings.

Faculty will be strongly encouraged to pursue additional training opportunities related to online pedagogy. Many options will be available to faculty without any cost. Fairmont State has a great internal training resource with our Center for Teaching and Learning Innovation. In addition, faculty will be encouraged to share best practices in less formal setting such as departmental lunch and learn sessions.

Accreditation:

The program does not plan to seek specialized accreditation at this time. But may decide to pursue certification through the Academy of Criminal Justice Science in the future. This is not required for criminal justice programs. But it would be a good feather in the cap of the program.

Advisory Board:

The traditional criminal justice program at Fairmont State University has assembled professionals from across multiple agencies in the criminal justice field to serve as an advisory council. The advisory board has representation from local, state, and federal stakeholder across many areas of criminal justice. The council will be able to assist in the continued assessment of the proposed online program as well. The program has an advisory board meeting every two to three years.

Program Need and Justification

Relationship to Institutional Mission and Goals:

The proposed program is consistent and compatible with Fairmont State University mission, which states; “Fairmont State University is a comprehensive, regional university committed to educating global citizen leaders in an environment distinguished by a commitment to excellence, student success and transformational impact.”⁶ The implementation of a fully online option for our Criminal Justice program will support the strategic themes of “Enrollment Management: Growth” as conceptualized in the universities Strategic Plan. The following table indicates various goals under the theme of enrollment growth in the strategic plan.

Fairmont State University already offers one of the oldest Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice degrees in the State of West Virginia. This program has been extremely successful and is one of the largest majors at Fairmont State University. In addition, Fairmont State University already offers a fully online Master of Science in Criminal Justice. The MS in Criminal Justice program has been fully online for over fifteen years. The Criminal Justice faculty already have extensive experience teaching online at both the graduate and undergraduate level. Many of the classes within the program have already been taught online. This will make including a fully online option for our students a simple transition.

Strategic theme goal	University Goal	Criminal Justice BS Online
Re-engage non-traditional students by understanding, creating, and offering unparalleled innovative programs	A minimum of 5 new on-line or low-residency undergraduate programs	Students would be able to complete this program completely online
Systematically identify and attract out-of-state and international students	Minimum of 20% out-of-state and a minimum of 500 international students	Online focus facilitates out-of-state enrollment

⁶ Fairmont State University, “A Quest for Distinction: Strategic Plan, 2018-2028,” September, 2023, pp. 2.

Increase enrollment of non-traditional learners	Minimum of 30% non-traditional learners (including part-time and full-time)	Program will attract part-time students, many of whom work full-time jobs. Many jobs in the CJ field do not require a degree but prospective students may wish to return to school for promotions or to move to higher paying positions in other agencies
Improve accessibility	Maintain tuition and average net price below those of peers	Low-cost online program, low cost for both in-state and out-of-state students under virtual tuition rate

Existing Programs:

- We currently compete with multiple programs that offer traditional face to face criminal justice programs. However, only two programs in WV offer an online undergraduate program in criminal justice.
 - a. BAS degree at WVU Potomac State College
 - b. BS degree at West Virginia State University
- Both of these are in other areas of the state that we traditionally do not compete with very much for students. WVU Potomac State College is approximately 95 miles away and West Virginia State University is approximately 147 miles away. We do not foresee a significant overlap in recruitment areas of focus for our proposed online program.

Clientele and Need:

As we stated in the introduction, many criminal justice agencies are facing staffing shortages that have a negative impact for the agency as well as society. Policing is at the forefront of this problem. In a 2019 study the Police Executive Research Forum (PERF) found that 86% of police departments surveyed reported that they were understaffed.⁷ Part of the problem is from recent difficulties recruiting qualified applicants. Some of the recruitment problem stems from generational differences regarding work life balance, and a less favorable public perception of law enforcement. However, part of the problem stems from a lack of qualified applicants. Our program can serve as a pipeline for qualified applicants. Having a flexible online format will allow the program to serve a wider audience than a traditional program.

⁷ PERF, The Workforce Crisis, and What Police Agencies Are Doing About It, (Washington, DC: PERF, 2019), <https://www.policeforum.org/assets/WorkforceCrisis.pdf>.

Many of the careers in the criminal justice field are becoming more complex. By extending the reach through a fully online program we will be able to reach more prospective students to prepare future professionals for these demanding roles.

We anticipate that our online course offerings will serve our fully online students and students in our existing face-to-face program who may choose to take an occasional online course. Currently, many students in our traditional program take a mixture of face-to-face and online coursework throughout their academic career. Having the structure in place to offer a fully online version of our program will also benefit students who choose our traditional program as it would ensure all required CJ courses have an online offering in our course rotation. This will allow our traditional students to tailor their schedules to their needs more effectively.

The program would have synergy with our recently created Police Academy which served its first class during the Spring of 2023. Recruits who are not Fairmont State students leave the academy program with 15 hours of college coursework. An online option for our BS program would give our academy graduates a great option for furthering their education as they return to their respective departments scattered across the West Virginia. The newly created program would also work well with our existing MS program, which is already fully online. By creating an additional pipeline of applicants with experience with online learning.

Employment Opportunities:

Graduates of the program will have many career opportunities. Graduates will qualify for employment in city, county, state, and federal criminal justice agencies, and in the private industrial security field. In addition, graduates will be able to seek careers in many criminal justice adjacent fields. Graduates will also be well prepared for graduate school and/or law school.

Most career opportunities related to criminal justice are expected to grow or remain steady for the next decade. The Bureau of Labor Statistics projects 68,500 openings yearly for police and detectives from 2021 to 2031. With a 3% growth rate.⁸ While some criminal justice focused positions such as probation are projected to remain steady, other areas are experiencing rapid growth. One such area is substance abuse counseling. Which is expected to grow by 22% from 2021-2031.⁹ Students with a bachelor's degree in criminal justice are well prepared for these positions.

Online Criminal Justice Program Learning Outcome Assessment Plan

Online Criminal Justice Program Learning Outcome Assessment Plan

Preface

The new online Criminal Justice program will share learning outcomes with the traditional Criminal Justice program already in existence at Fairmont State University. This will allow for direct comparison between the two programs as the only major difference is the format for delivery of the program.

Below are the program learning outcomes that will be shared across the two modalities of the criminal justice program. Our traditional program has used these outcomes for many years now and they have worked well for evaluating the success of our students in obtaining the knowledge and skills our students should achieve on completion of our program.

8. Summarize the history, function, practices, and philosophical/ theoretical viewpoints of law enforcement and correctional agencies in the United States. (Aligns with content areas law enforcement, and corrections in the ACJS standards).
9. Explain the basic concept of constitutional law relating to criminal procedure. (Aligns with content area law adjudication in the ACJS standards).
10. Explain the source and origin of criminal law with a focus on the scope, purpose, and definition of criminal law, as well as the structure, function and operation of criminal courts and the adjudication process. (Aligns with content area law adjudication in the ACJS standards).
11. Identify ethical issues related to criminal justice issues/ work and apply ethical philosophies toward the identification of solutions. (Aligns with section B.6 of ACJS standards).
12. Explain the major components of criminological theories and their impact on criminal justice policy. (Aligns with content area criminological theory in the ACJS standards).
13. Apply quantitative and qualitative research methodologies to the study of criminal justice and/or criminology through the development of a research study. (Aligns with content area research and analytic methodology in the ACJS standards).
14. Apply research studies and/or legal doctrine to evaluate issues and policy related to the criminal justice field. (Aligns with content area administration of justice in the ACJS standards).

Each outcome is measured at multiple points in the program. A listing of each program outcome and where it is assessed in the program is provided in the table 1 below.

Course Learning Activities

There are a total of 100 points for this course broken down as follows:

Assignment #1 = 10 points

Assignment #2 = 10 points

Assignment #3 = 10 points

Assignment #4 = 10 points

Assignment #5 = 10 points

Class Participation = 50% (10 discussions worth 5 points each)

Written Assignments:

There are FIVE assignments that will consist of written responses to questions I provide to you. Each assignment should consist of no less than 350 words, but no more than 1000 words, unless otherwise noted. The assignments will be submitted via the “Assignment” section of blackboard. You are to “cut and paste” your work INTO the assignment box. I will NOT accept attachments to the assignment box or to an e-mail.

Discussion Assignments:

A question and/or a comment will be posted each Wednesday. You are to discuss this posting as well as read your fellow classmates postings and respond to at least two of your classmates’ comments. In other words, each of you need to do at least one “post” (approximately 250-500 words) and at least two “replies” to classmates (approximately 200-250 words). However, simply completing one post and two replies does not guarantee full credit. Quality Matters! The discussion will close on that topic on the following Tuesday at 11:59 EST.

Please note the textbook is a required resource. It is essential that you obtain the textbook and use it. Since this is an online course there is no lecture time and much of what you will be asked to do that replaces that in class time involves reading from the textbook. I cannot emphasize enough the importance of using the assigned textbook. You cannot get the same information or the same result by "googling" or relying solely on online resources. As a rule, you will not be successful in this class if you do not have and use the textbook.

Course Learning Activities

Written Assignments:

The papers are a content analysis of the “Hot House” book. There will be four papers at least three pages in length, double spaced with 12-point font, times new roman. These papers are in APA FORMAT. If you are uncertain about how to use the APA format, please see “OWL PURDUE WRITING LAB” (available on Blackboard), for assistance. These papers should analyze the material while also including your personal reaction. The designated chapters for each paper are listed in the schedule. You also will need to properly cite in your paper. At no point in time shall you e-mail me your paper. If you attempt to email me your paper, I will not even open it, I will only delete it.

I must warn you; this book is explicit in nature. It is a true account of offender's experiences while in prison. The language is rough and so are some of the descriptions of the actions that were witnessed. If you feel you cannot handle this material, please see me and I will assign a less explicit book.

Paper Format (You MUST label each of these sections in your paper).

- Introduction: Open up your paper
- Brief Summary of the readings – point out key characters and what they are up to
- Relate to class/text material
- Personal reaction: give your personal (educated) reaction to the readings.
- Conclusion: Close your paper

Your paper must go through “Safe Assign” when submitting it.

Discussion Assignments:

Tests/Quizzes:

Examinations will be scheduled as indicated unless we find the need for some flexibility with scheduling. Each exam will cover material from the textbook, films, handouts, and lectures, but NOT the Hot House book. The tests will be mostly comprised of multiple choices, true and false, and some short essay questions. You will also have four papers that will be an analysis of the “Hot House” book. We will further discuss the format of these papers in class. If you miss an exam you must have a university excused absence and you must notify me before the exam or within 24 hours. If you do not do this I do not have to let you make up any missed exams. If you will be absent for any University activity (sports, clubs, class field trips, etc.) you MUST notify me before you will be absent for it to be excused.

ISBN: 978-1-305-26105-1

The textbook is a required resource. It is essential that you obtain the textbook and use it. Since this is an online course there is no lecture time and much of what you will be asked to do involves reading from the textbook. I cannot emphasize enough the importance of using the assigned textbook. You cannot get the same information or the same result by "googling" or relying solely on online resources. As a rule, you will not be successful in this class if you do not have and use the textbook.

Online Resources

In addition to information found in your textbook you will be required to access information through links to the Internet. These online resources are invaluable to success in this class. If you find a link doesn't work let me know immediately. You may also use other online resources of which you may be aware for the completion of assignments, but be certain that the sources you use are credible. For example, Wikipedia is not a credible, acceptable online resource. Do not use or cite Wikipedia! You must also be very careful when using information found online. If you include any part of what you find you must cite the reference and give credit to the writer, otherwise it is plagiarism.

Course Learning Activities

Quizzes

There will a quiz at the end of each module which will cover assigned reading and other information in the module. The quizzes will be opened and closed on a specific day and time. Each test or quiz will have a due date and any test or quiz not completed by the due date will be considered late. For each quiz there is also a cut-off date. This is the absolute last day a quiz can be completed, after this day and time no quiz will not be accepted. For purposes of grade calculations a score of 0 will be assigned to any quiz not completed by the cut-off date.

Each quiz will be assigned a point value which can be converted to a letter grade using the grading scaled set out below. At the end of the class, the point value earned on each quiz will be a part of the total from which your final grade is computed.

Assignments

There will be numerous assignments for this class that require you to access and read information found in your textbook and from sources other than your textbook. Each module will have at least one assignment in addition to the quiz referenced above. After reading you will be required to answer questions about the information. Some of the assignments will require reading and then application of the information to facts and others will merely require you to relate factual information you will find in the assigned material. Each assignment will have a value of 20 points.

Each assignment will be given a due date and an essential part of the grade for the assignment will be timely submission. In addition to a due date each assignment will have a cut-off date that will be during the last week of the course. This date will not be during finals week. This is a drop-dead date. Any assignment not completed by the cut-off date will receive a grade of 0. There are no exceptions to this rule.

In addition to content and timely submission a part of the grade for each assignment will be grammar, punctuation and spelling. You will receive up to five points for correct grammar, punctuation and spelling in your assignments.

So, in summary each written assignment will be graded as follows:

- Content--15 points
- Grammar, punctuation and spelling--5 points
- Total points for each assignment--20 points

Grading Scale:

All discussions, assignments and quizzes will be assigned a point value. At the end of the class all of your points will be totaled. Grades will be assigned according to the following scale:

1. 90-100% of total points=A
2. 80-89% of total points=B
3. 70-79% of total points=C
4. 60-69% of total points=D
5. Below 60% of total points=F

Written Assignments:

For many of the assignments in this class you will be required to write a short 1-2-page paper in APA format on a provided topic. These assignments will allow you to better understand various issues related to the threat and law enforcement pursuit of cybercrime. Each of these assignments is worth 20 points. For each assignment a rubric has been provided. There will be a total of 6 short writing assignments.

Discussion Assignments:

You will be required to participate in discussion postings at times throughout this class. We will start these discussion online for the virtual day of the course and continue them in person. I will post instructions and a rubric with each discussion assignment. For each discussion you will be required to provide an initial post before you can see the posts made by your classmates. You will also be required to engage in discussion with the instructor and your classmates at a level that contributes to the overall discussion in some way. In other words, your responses to your classmates should have some meat. A simple I agree with your point will not suffice. In such cases you should provide detail on why. In addition, I encourage you to ask your classmates questions. There will be a total of 6 discussion assignments. Each discussion assignment will be worth 20 points.

Tests/Quizzes:

You will have 4 tests in this course. Generally, each test will cover 3 to 4 chapters worth of material. The final test will be a comprehensive final. Each test will be worth 100 points. The last test is a comprehensive final.

Sample Course Learning Activities

Discussion Assignments:

To facilitate online class discussion, each student is required to respond TWO TIMES (once to my initial question AND once to another student's post) to posted discussion questions on Blackboard EVERY week. A link to the Discussion Forum will be posted in the "Weekly Modules" tab at the start of the week. You will have until Thursday night (11:59 pm EST) to post your initial response to my posted question in the forum. You will then need to post in response to another student's comments by the following Sunday night at 11:59 pm.

Please note, a simple "I agree/disagree" is not enough. At least one full paragraph must be posted for discussion and you must provide evidence to back up your argument and/or clear feedback about any positions taken. CITE your sources! Please try to keep the discussion going by responding to student's posts, asking questions, or requesting further clarifications within these posts.

Posts will be graded using the following Discussion Post Rubric:
Provided critical response to Instructor's initial posting (IP) /10
Critically questioned/challenged another Student's post (RP) /10
Total Score: /20

Critical Reflection Papers (CRP)

You will compose four short critical reflection papers worth 50 points each. CRPs will be in response to your choice of one of the additional reading articles/videos/media provided under the 'Assignments' tab in the "Critical Reflection Paper" folder on Blackboard. The CRs should briefly summarize all or part of an author's argument that you find particularly interesting/surprising/thoughtprovoking/dubious/infuriating/etc. Additionally, you will explain your critical thinking about that argument (what is your reaction and why), and apply and integrate arguments to course material (concepts, theories, etc.). This is to be an exercise in critical thinking (not simply summary) so you should avoid blabber and keep your argument clear and direct. Be sure to craft analytical arguments rather than simply making moral claims or observations.

Taking time to critically reflect in writing after reading can enhance learning, comprehension, and retention of the material and is one valuable way to prepare for class discussion of the material. Reflections should be AT LEAST two pages (not more than four) typed double-spaced in TNR and will be submitted according to the due dates listed in the schedule. The rubric for CRPs is as follows:

Summarized additional reading/media of choice	/10
Critical reaction of the reading/media	/15
Application/Integrated to course materials	/25
Total Score: /50

Critical Victimology Project:

This project will serve as the Final for the course and will be reflective of the application of critical victimology. Specific details will be provided throughout the semester via Blackboard.

University and Course Policies:

See page 95 of this proposal/ appendix for a list of polices consistent across classes that are to be included an all syllabi.

Standard Course and University Policy Statements

The following statements represent standard university and course policies. Although it should be noted that instructors may add additional course policies. For example, the instructor's individual policy on late work.

Late Work Policy:

To be added by instructors.

Faculty and Student Expectations:

To be added by instructors. But at a minimum the policy should address student expectations for engagement in the course and the level of engagement students can expect from the instructor. This may include, how often the instructor checks the course and emails, how often students are expected to log into the course, when students can expect grades to be posted on completed course activities, and any additional expectations specific to a course.

Netiquette:

Students are required to adhere to the same professional, legal and ethical standards of conduct online as on campus. In addition, students should conform to generally accepted standards of "netiquette" while sending e-mail, posting comments to the discussion board, and while participating in other means of communicating online. Specifically, students should refrain from inappropriate and/or offensive language, comments and actions.

In this class, we will be discussing many sensitive and controversial topics. It is vital that our classroom represents an environment where everyone feels safe to express their views and opinions and share their personal experiences openly. To ensure that individual voices are not silenced or marginalized, we must make a mutual commitment to respect other's views and ideas and to remain accountable for our own. An open mind and a mature attitude is a requirement for this class.

In the spirit of cooperating in a collaborative and safe learning environment, we should all strive to:

1. Remember the Human. (It is easy to misinterpret meaning in online interactions. We do not have many of the social cues we use in the real world.)
2. Listen openly to others in an effort to understand their perspectives and ideas. This does not mean that you always have to agree with the opinions being voiced.
3. Express your own ideas and perspectives, as well as your critiques or disagreements of other's ideas, fully and respectfully.

4. Discuss and debate the concepts and ideas and not the individual speaker by agreeing never to demean or devalue individuals for sharing their unique experiences. If you disagree with the point you should confront their argument not the person.
5. Acknowledge the –isms: racism, classism, sexism, ethnocentrism, heterosexism, ageism, ableism and oppression based on disability, national origin, physical appearance, and other institutionalized forms of oppression exist and differentially affect us all.
6. Agree to respect class confidentiality. We discuss sensitive topics in this class. You should treat the post of your fellow students as confidential.
7. Please feel free to see me if you believe any individual has not been respectful to others. Also, if you feel I have not been properly respectful to you or another student, then definitely bring this to my immediate attention.

Academic Integrity:

Fairmont State values highly the integrity of its student scholars. All students and faculty members are urged to share in the responsibility for removing every situation which might permit or encourage academic dishonesty. Cheating in any form, including plagiarism, must be considered a matter of the gravest concern. Cheating is defined here as:

- the obtaining of information during an examination;
- the unauthorized use of books, notes, or other sources of information prior to or during an examination;
- the removal of faculty examination materials;
- the alteration of documents or records; or
- actions identifiable as occurring with the intent to defraud or use under false pretense.

Plagiarism is defined here as the submission of the ideas, words (written or oral), or artistic productions of another, falsely represented as one's original effort or without giving due credit. Students and faculty should examine proper citation forms to avoid inadvertent plagiarism.

Accessibility Services:

Through collaboration with institutional allies, networks, and community partners, Accessibility Services leadership contributes to the development of equitable higher education experiences for all students who have disabilities. These services are available to any student, full or part-time, who has a need because of a documented disability. It is the student's responsibility to register for these services and provide any necessary documentation to verify a disability or the need for accommodations. Students must provide their professors with a copy of their academic accommodation letter each semester in order to receive accommodations. Faculty, students, and the Office of Accessibility Services must cooperate to ensure the most effective provision of accommodations for each class. If you are a person with a disability and anticipate needing any type of accommodation in order to participate in your classes, please advise your instructors and make appropriate arrangements with the Office of Accessibility Services.

Accessibility Services is located in the Turley Student Services Center (304) 367-4141. For additional information, please visit the Fairmont State Office of Accessibility Services webpage.

These are to be viewed as course requirements and completed to the best of your ability and with full attention.:
