

Wouldn't it be great if you could just scan your brain to figure out what sort of college or university is right for you?

It's not quite THAT easy — but College Application Week is a chance for you to have some fun exploring colleges and degree programs, so you can get ready for education and training beyond high school.

Even better, if you participate in College Application Week, you'll be entered to win great prizes. And if our school's senior class submits more applications* than other GEAR UP schools, our students can audition for the chance to star in a new statewide advertising campaign!

College Application Week will be held November 15 through 19. To get ready, visit www.cfwv.com and create an account. You'll need it to participate in our College Application Week activities!

* Schools will compete based on the percentage of students in the senior class that actively participate in College Application Week. To be considered an active participant, a student must submit at least two college applications during the week of November 14-19 AND complete the online College Application Week questionnaire. At least one of the applications a student submits must be to a West Virginia Community and Technical College. Students may submit more than two applications if they choose, but they will still only be counted as one participant for the competition. GEAR UP coordinators and other staff members will assist students in submitting applications and completing the online College Application Week questionnaire.

Paid for by the U.S. Department of Education, GEAR UP Federal funds.
