Report from Dr. Rose:

- Various bills such as the health bills, charter schools, and the prevailing wage bill are moving though. Feb. 23rd is the last day to introduce a bill.
- The university board council will meet with Moodys to determine our debt rating Feb. 18-20.
- Some changes to commencement may take place this semester due to seating issues. Two ceremonies have been discussed rather than issuing tickets for family members.
- Attempts are being made through the Fairmont State Foundation to be more proactive with fundraising.
- Campus visitation day is on March 28th. Ads are going out over Spotify, Pandora, local radio, newspapers, and TV. These will run in markets in Pittsburgh, Baltimore, and southern West Virginia among others.
- Various exercises are taking place to develop emergency response plans for the campus in collaboration with an outside consultant.
- The legislative budget outlines a 1.4% cut or approximately $225,000 for the 15-16 academic year. Other schools have lost more money due to line item cuts, but we had little of this to lose. Other schools are fighting to have these re-inserted so this may force changes in the above cut.
- Recently, the institutions of higher ed in WV have started working more closely together. They have agreed that asking for new money is a nonstarter, but have been lobbying for some oversight relief.
- SB330 focusing on a compensation salary scheme for WV may be redirected to be performed with a modification of existing systems since the data from the outside consultant was corrupted and worthless.
- Some discussion has taken place about raising the cap on physical plant projects that require approval from HEPC.
- Outcome based funding has been raised again. Institutions are adamant that it must not use an arbitrary formula, and should not take money from base budgets.

Report from Dr. Dempsey

- See Attached materials
- We are improving enforcement of the undeclared policy
- We are moving toward being able to waitlist
- Discussion of how to track and count majors.

Anne Patterson raised the question about how we can handle students coming to class for the first time at week four due to a hold on their accounts. Regular updates of student's status were discussed.

BOG report from Dr. Mild

No Report

ACF report

- Election will be held
- A discussion was held with newly elected representatives, and items affecting students were laid out. The representatives seemed to listen attentively. Everyone seems to be trying to get a grip on certain decisions that were previously made such as splitting the community college and university systems.

Student Government Report

• Elections are occurring soon, and faculty are encouraged to suggest names and encourage their students to participate.

Budget

- Issues were raised about the budget and how this is affecting faculty searches with positions not being filled or being filled with temporary contracts.
- The request was made to help us understand and for President Rose to address these issues.
- President Rose addressed the numerous budgetary cuts that have taken place over the last few years. The 2.4 million state funding loss and Pierpont withdrawing the approximately 1/3 of funding for among other things institutional advancement, the foundation, academic advisors, career services, and recruiters.
- President Rose stressed that Pierpont still funds to support various things such as HR procurement and building upkeep.
- It is important for Pierpont to be successful for us to be successful.
- We have done a lot to maximize our dollars. For example, the severance plan will realize $500,000 $600,000 in savings, but it will take a few years.
- Certain decisions have been made like programs saying they no longer need a tenured professor in a certain area and instead would like to use funds for something else. Business was used as an example in regards to their decision to move money to create academic advisors.
- There is a conscious effort to not cut programs if at all possible.
- The example was given that even though French was cut Dr. Hipolyte is still here because we need her.
- Dr. Rose indicated that the discussion centered on not wanting to hire faculty that would then need to be laid off. Three year temporary contracts were discussed with a prevision to roll them over to tenure track, and a provision to give them credit for time accrued toward tenure.

- Nursing was provided as an example of having had many temporary faculty that were then converted over.
- Program fees were discussed. The online course fee was doubled with those dollars going to the academic units.
- The issue was raised about retiring faculty and a large numbers of unfilled positions in certain programs.
- Dr. Rose stated that we currently have no mechanism in place to prioritize programs that see growth in students and may need additional resources.
- The current CFO is retiring Jan. 2016. The new CFO is currently being sought so that they can come on board July 2015. In addition many of the current responsibilities of the CFO (Housing, physical plant, security) have been reassigned so that the new hire can focus solely on the budget.
- Dr. Rose disclosed that numerous cost saving measures were suggested and rejected.
 - A freeze on travel funds
 - A freeze on equipment purchases
 - Not funding promotions (strongly rejected)
- All promotions are currently in the budget.
- We have strong reserves, but if Pierpont were to walk away this wouldn't last very long.
- The issue was raised that part of the anxiety was a lack of information about the budget, and that it would be very useful if we had real numbers. Also, better communication would be appreciated.
- A concern was raised that the dean's retreat was steered in an unexpected direction, and that a clearer agenda would allow for better preparation.
- Dr. Rose raised the issue that the budget changes every day with purging students, settlements, etc.
- Dr. Rose said that certain accounting strategies used by the current CFO confuse even her and the Provost.
- There is hope that we've hit the bottom, but the perception is that these budget cuts will be permanent. The issue is not just low fertility in WV, but also migration.
- Dr. Rose addressed questions about these new temporary contracts. A question was raised about do these people get priority in searches, will it be a quick search, and how will years be awarded toward tenure? Dr. Rose suggested that the wording in the contract will be key in all these questions.
- Dr. Rose also addressed the question about whether Fairmont was unique in facing these issues. She replied that we aren't unique, and that everyone is facing these issues since the WV economy lagged behind in the recession and is lagging in the recovery.
- The request was made that Dr. Rose "rally the troops", and that a push from leadership to celebrate what we do well would be beneficial.
- Dr. Rose indicated that she would be happy to come to department meetings to speak directly to other faculty.

"The frustrating challenging . . . is determining whether you are making a real difference. But many wonder how they can make a bigger difference given the limited amount of time and energy they have. The solution is to find leverage. The key is to find small maneuvers that can create big results."

"It's the moments between the moments. That which you take for granted, and you say it's trivial. Figuring that out is brilliant."
