Program with Special Accreditation  X Program without Special Accreditation

Date Submitted: February 01, 2015

Program: B.S. Criminal Justice

Institutional Recommendation

The institution is obligated to recommend continuance or discontinuance of a program and to provide a brief rationale for its recommendation:

X 1. Continuation of the program at the current level of activity;

2. Continuation of program with corrective action (for example, reducing the range of optional tracks or merging programs);

3. Identification of the program for further development (for example, providing additional institutional commitment);

4. Development of a cooperative program with another institution, or sharing courses, facilities, faculty, and the like;

5. Discontinuation of the Program

Rationale for Recommendation:

The Bachelor of Science Degree in Criminal Justice meets or exceeds the four characteristics of adequacy, viability, necessity, and consistency with the mission of Fairmont State University. The program is over 30 years old. The faculty associated with the B.S. in Criminal Justice has continued to make improvements in the program to keep pace with societal changes. As a result, the program has increased enrollment, retention and graduation numbers. The separation with Pierpont Community and Technical College has helped immensely. These successes are achieved in spite of having very few faculty members. The serious concern about the lack of full-time faculty members is compounded by the fact that most faculty members also support the growing Master of Science in Criminal Justice Program. The continuation of this program is strongly recommended.

PROGRAM REVIEW

Name and degree level of program:
Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice

External Reviewer(s):
The Fairmont State University Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice Program has had an advisory board in place since the mid-1980’s. The board greatly assists with the continued evolution and development of the curriculum. The members of the advisory board consist of well-respected leaders from various specializations in the field of criminal justice.

Synopses of significant findings, including findings of external review:
The Bachelor of Sciences degree in Criminal Justice is designed to provide students with the necessary background to pursue careers in law enforcement, corrections, and investigations. The demand for educated practitioners in criminal justice continues to increase with the advancement of technology and changing societal conditions. This increase in demand has continued to grow and stabilize our program. The faculty members have been able to advance their teaching and scholarship by attending both national and regional conferences and workshops. Furthermore, many of our students have been able to attend and successfully compete in state and national competitions

The following findings have been developed in coordination with the faculty and the Criminal Justice Advisory Board:

1. Exceptional and caring faculty with real-world experience.

Most of the Criminal Justice faculty members have practice experience in their area of expertise. Students have indicated that having professors who have worked for a period of years in their field of expertise has enhanced their educational experience.

2. Faculty members devote a great deal of time advising and mentoring students.

The Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice Program has been successful over the past five years retaining majors because of advisor involvement reviewing students GPA’s, course schedules, and registration status. This is an incredible accomplishment considering most faculty members have over 90 advisees.
3. Growing enrollment, retention and graduation rates.

The advisory board suggested that students would benefit from real-world interactive training. Therefore, the Criminal Justice Program has purchased a firearms simulator. The simulator is only the fourth in the State of West Virginia. Yet is the most technologically advanced. It has already received media and community attention.

The Criminal Justice Program has also been able to recruit and retain students by providing opportunities for students to compete both locally and nationally in competitions. We have had great success at this. We have had national officers elected to the National Criminal Justice Honor Society. We have also won first place at the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences National Crime Scene Competition three of the past four years.

4. Accessible faculty members and low student to faculty ratio.

The faculty members of the Criminal Justice Program are completely student-focused. They make sure they are available to meet with students. They not only provide assistance with course work. The faculty members also provide career guidance.

5. Low tuition costs.

Fairmont State University has one of the lowest tuition rates of all four-year state institutions in West Virginia. We strive to provide a quality education at a reasonable rate.

6. The success rate of graduates being accepted into top graduate programs.

Many of our students who apply to graduate programs are accepted. Most have found they are well prepared for graduate level course work.

7. The success rate of graduates finding professional employment.

Many of our students have found great success in obtaining employment upon graduation. Most find employment with federal, state and local agencies.

8. Continue to make progress in the area of program and course assessment.
The Criminal Justice Program assessment materials are stored in Taskstream. The assessment process has resulted in recent curriculum changes that will improve our program.

Plans for program improvement, including timeline:

The following plans for improvement have been developed in coordination with the faculty and the Criminal Justice Advisory Board:

1. Continuing to increase enrollment, retention and graduation rates are the major goals over the next five years. This will involve closely monitoring students and early advising efforts.

2. Continue to review assessment data for the program and all individual courses on an annual basis. After reviewing the data, continue to modify the curriculum to reflect assessment results.

3. Seek specialized accreditation (certification) from the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences within five years. We will be the first institution in the State of West Virginia to receive this accreditation. However, this will only be possible with retaining and hiring at least two additional full-time tenured track faculty members.

4. Find space and launch a Criminal Justice laboratory within two years where students will be able to develop their firearm skills with the recently purchased small arms trainer. In addition, this space will provide space to learn crime scene investigative techniques among other essential functions of law enforcement.

Identification of weaknesses or deficiencies from the previous review and the status of improvements implemented or accomplished:

There were not any recommendations from the previous five-year program review. Nevertheless, the program of study has been incrementally revised in recent years to reflect needs in the field such as increasing and diversifying upper level course offerings, hiring a full-time academic advisor for the College of Liberal Arts to assist with recruitment and retention, and providing additional money for faculty professional development and technology.

There is a serious concern about the adequacy of facilities and technology. We struggle to find available classrooms. We also cannot find space for our Criminal Justice laboratory. Technology is also a concern. The Outlook program (i.e. university email) does not allow faculty to access their email accounts off-campus beyond a few minutes before being disrupted. This seriously inhibits faculty and student communication. Also, the Blackboard online platform is scheduled to be replaced with a new online platform. If this indeed happens, this will be very beneficial for our faculty and the students enrolled in online courses. We live in a world where efficient technology is essential to both teach and communicate with students.

It is becoming increasingly difficult to maintain our outstanding reputation based on quality instruction and small class sizes without an adequate number of faculty members. The academic field of criminal justice has become increasingly competitive. More national and regional institutions are committing funds and resources towards their criminal justice discipline. We must have a strong commitment from this administration to retain current faculty at a respectable pay scale. Our criminal justice faculty members are constantly being recruited by other institutions because of their vast experience and credentials. We must also be authorized by this administration to recruit new faculty members as tenured-track professors. It is virtually impossible to attract and hire professors in this discipline without offering a tenured-track position and a respectable salary.

Five-year trend data on graduates and majors enrolled:
The Criminal Justice Program has grown because of the quality curriculum and staff.

Summary of assessment model and how results are used for program improvement:

The Criminal Justice Program has made and continues to make great strides in the assessment area. The Criminal Justice Program and Fairmont State University document assessment materials in Taskstream. This program provides an archive for program documentation, and a database for program analysis and improvement. A review of the program’s outcomes and assessments along with individual course outcomes and assessments have occurred over the past five years as part of the program’s assessment plans. This assessment process is now embedded in the program and will continue. In addition, the Criminal Justice program has developed a required capstone course that will become part of the curriculum in academic year 2015-2016. This course will also help determine whether the program outcomes have been met.
The Criminal Justice Advisory Board also serves as an external assessment tool for our program. Suggestions made by the advisory board are implemented into our program and curriculum.

Data on student placement:
Little data exists on the specific job placement of Criminal Justice graduates to a national placement rate. The data regarding placement of Criminal Justice majors graduating from Fairmont State University from 2010-2014 has been collected primarily through personal contacts between faculty members and their former students and resulting requests for reference letters and background checks. This data indicates that nearly all of the graduates seek immediate employment upon graduation. However, some students enroll in graduate programs including Fairmont State University’s Master of Science in Criminal Justice Program.

Those who join the workforce have obtained employment with the United States Navy, United States Air Force, United States Army, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the United States Marshals Service, Federal Bureau of Prisons, mostly at the Gilmer, Hazelton, and Morgantown facilities. Also, graduates have found employment with the West Virginia State Police, the Maryland State Police, Fairmont City Police and Morgantown police.

Final recommendations approved by governing board:
PROGRAM CATALOG DESCRIPTION

Criminal justice examines the structure, functions, and decision-making processes of agencies that deal with crime and criminal offenders. As an independent academic discipline, criminal justice is comparatively new. Interest in criminal justice education was spurred by the "war of crime" during the 1960's and the resulting massive federal funding to upgrade criminal justice agencies, technology, programming, and education of criminal justice personnel.

Faculty in this program provide expertise in law enforcement, investigations, corrections, criminal law, and theory. Majors are assigned a faculty advisor who will assist in selection of courses relevant to individual interests and career aspirations.

Students with a B.S. degree in criminal justice qualify for employment in city, county, state and federal criminal justice agencies, and in the rapidly-growing private industrial security field. A number of graduates continue their education in graduate programs in criminal justice, criminology, or law. The program also offers a Master of Science in Criminal Justice degree.

Service Courses:

The Criminal Justice program does not offer any service courses only.

The National Security and Intelligence Major (NSI) require students to complete courses from several different fields of study, including Criminal Justice. NSI students take CRIM 4410 and CRIM 4405 (cross-listed as POLI 4405). The electives available to NSI students include CRIM 2236, CRIM 2246, and CRIM 3310. The Political Science major requires CRIM 2295 and CRIM 4410.

Off Campus Courses

The Criminal Justice program only offers a few introductory courses off-campus. These courses are only located at the Caperton Center in Clarksburg, West Virginia.
Cost/Student Credit Hour
The Criminal Justice program continues to be far below the institutional average of costs per student FTE major.

Assessment Requirements

The Criminal Justice Department has utilized the Criminal Justice Advisory Board as an external assessment tool, whereby suggestions made by the board concerning curriculum and program improvements are implemented. Members of the board consist of federal, state and local officials in the law enforcement, corrections, investigative and legal communities.

The faculty is also a vital resource in this assessment model. In addition to the program outcomes that were developed by faculty, course outcomes and assessments have been developed and implemented for all university owned undergraduate courses. A curriculum proposal was recently approved for academic year 2015-2016 reflecting the on-going assessment process for the criminal justice program. Included in the curriculum changes for AY 2015-2016 is a capstone course, CRIM 4425 Evaluation of the CJ System. This course will improve our ability to assess student progress toward our stated program learning outcomes. The capstone course will provide an opportunity for the Criminal Justice faculty to observe, examine, and assess each individual student. Each student will be required to write and present a major research project that demonstrates critical thinking, mastery of the topic, an understanding of the discipline, analysis, as well as written and oral communication skills.
The Criminal Justice program and Fairmont State University have made and continue to make strides in the assessment area. All assessment materials are now documented in Taskstream. This program provides an archive for program documentation, and a database for program analysis and improvement. Program as well as course outcomes and assessment techniques have been finalized and reviewed by the University Assessment Committee.

The program outcomes for the Criminal Justice major have been developed. Students who graduate with a Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice will be able to:

a) Exhibit an understanding of the contemporary criminal justice system, its policies and practices, juvenile justice, victimology, and comparative systems.

b) Demonstrate knowledge of law enforcement philosophies, and the structure, function, and operations of law enforcement agencies.

c) Demonstrate knowledge of correctional philosophies, and the structure, function, and operation of correctional agencies.

d) Demonstrate knowledge of legal philosophies, and the structure, function, and operation of criminal courts and the adjudication process.

e) Convey an understanding the distinctive responsibility for adherence to moral and ethical obligations inherent in the criminal justice professions.

f) Exhibit an understanding of and the ability to apply criminological theories in explaining crime.

g) Demonstrate the ability, through written and oral communication, to integrate knowledge acquired from core courses.

h) Apply techniques of research methodology, writing and oral communication in the study of criminal justice.

Graduation / Retention Rates

Retention and graduation rates of Criminal Justice majors are improving as evidenced by the table below. The Criminal Justice program has been able to increase retention and graduation rates by increasing advisor contact and with the assistance of establishing an advising center staffed by a full-time academic advisor. The faculty members also believe that the graduation and retention rates improved when the Fairmont State Criminal Justice program completely separated from the Criminal Justice program at Pierpont Community College.

Accreditation/National Standards
The Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences (ACJS) offered specialized certification for qualifying programs beginning in 2005. To obtain ACJS certification, criminal justice programs must meet an array of requirements. The Criminal Justice Program plans to pursue ACJS certification in the near future. While the program has made great strides toward this goal, several changes and improvements must be made before we can accomplish this. This will require additional institutional commitment to the program and a focus on achieving these improvements. In particular, the program must hire additional faculty. It will be virtually impossible to achieve certification with the current number of faculty to student ratio.

Fairmont State University is accredited by the Higher Learning Commission and is a member of the North Central Association, 30 North LaSalle Street, Suite 2400, Chicago, IL 60602.

NECESSITY

Placement and Success of Graduates
The data regarding placement of Criminal Justice majors graduating from Fairmont State University from 2010-2014 has been collected primarily through personal contacts between faculty members and their former students and resulting requests for reference letters. This data indicates that nearly all of the graduates seek immediate employment upon graduation most obtain employment with local, federal and state agencies. However, some graduates enroll in graduate programs in criminal justice or law school.

Those who join the workforce have obtained employment with the Federal Bureau of Prisons, the United States Marshals Service, United States Navy, United States Air Force, United States Army, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, local government, and the Defense of Department.

The Criminal Justice Program makes every effort to further the ambitions of its majors by posting on the department’s bulletin board and disseminating information of interest to job seekers on positions available in-state and out-of state. Students are regularly told of opportunities advertised in professional literature whenever appropriate. This information is also shared with the Placement Office and other relevant departments. Faculty members also encourage capable students to consider furthering their education by providing them with information on graduate programs, internships, and scholarships available to them.

Similar Programs in West Virginia

There are no similar programs in West Virginia within a 50-mile radius of Fairmont State University campus. Salem International University, a private institution, offers a criminal justice program in a much smaller scope. West Virginia University offers a sociology degree with a focus on criminology and investigations.

CONSISTENCY with MISSION

The Criminal Justice Program relates fully to the mission of the institution as it endorses one to “discover roles for responsible citizenship that promotes the welfare of all.” It is difficult to find a major that fits more squarely with the mission of the institution. Most of the graduates of the program will dedicate themselves to being responsible citizens and protect the rest of the citizenry from harmful acts perpetrated by others.

The Criminal Justice Program supports the ideal of a well-educated population. The program serves the needs of students who are planning to enter highly competitive positions and those who are currently employed and looking for advancement opportunities. The Criminal Justice Program seeks to provide graduates who not only possess the knowledge and skills of a single discipline, but who also can think critically and communicate effectively, both orally and in writing.

Its mission is consistent with the missions of the units to which it belongs. The Mission of the Department of Social Science is to promote “scholarship, opportunity, achievement and responsibility through the pursuit of intellectual excellence and global awareness, so that it is possible to excel in professional achievement and personal growth.” The Mission of the College of Liberal Arts is “to engage students in pursuit of intellectual excellence and global awareness, bringing them to join with faculty mentors in the discoveries, both personal and professional, to be realized through Scholarship, Opportunity, Achievement, and Responsibility, Fairmont State’s core values.” The mission of Fairmont State University is “to provide opportunities for individuals to achieve their professional and personal goals and discover roles for responsible citizenship that promote the common good.”

Criminal Justice Mission Statement:
The Criminal Justice Program acknowledges its relationship to the College of Liberal Arts and the Department of Social Science and the interdisciplinary nature of its discipline and seeks through its curriculum to provide students with a broad foundation of knowledge grounded in the social and behavioral sciences. The program further seeks to provide majors with an understanding of the functions, roles, and critical issues associated with law enforcement, corrections, courts, and related technology.

ADVISING RESPONSIBILITIES

I average over 50 advisees each term. I am the advisor for all criminal justice graduate students. In addition, I maintain normal load of undergraduate advisees, despite having a waiver for undergraduate advisees via the director responsibilities. I did not want to give up what I see as a true opportunity to serve the undergraduate students. Clearly, I am biased because I am a psychologist (and a helper at heart), so I have a passion for assisting students with choosing a path and getting what they need to reach their goals. I enjoy advising, meet with each individually as feasible (which can be initially unpopular with those who simply want you to email their PIN, but typically results in appreciative students in the end), and feel it is important to get to know them for background checks, letters of recommendation, etc. This is particularly important for criminal justice majors because most jobs require a background check, to include interviews with former faculty and advisors. It is difficult to show evidence of what I believe are the most important and rewarding aspects of advising. I may meet with 30 undergraduate students for an average of 30 minutes and have extensive email and phone conversations with the graduate students every semester, but I really have nothing to show for that. I may meet with federal background investigators all over the county to help our students get the jobs they have worked so hard for, but there is no direct evidence of this. To me, however, this is the single most rewarding aspect of my employment at FSU. There is no greater professional feeling that to see the face of a student who has stopped by to tell you how valuable their internship has been or how excited they are to be embarking on their first career adventure. Best of all, is hearing from former students and advisees who are now well into their own careers. It is common for many of our alumni to come back to visit on holiday breaks, to come to speak to the students who are sitting in the seats that were theirs not so long ago, and to keep in touch with us about their careers.

PRACTICAL WORK EXPERIENCE

Graduate Assistant assigned to Dr. Robert Mutchnick, 2010-2011.
Assisted in updating the statistics for the textbook Criminal Justice Interactive.

Graduate Assistant assigned to Dr. John Lewis and the Criminology Advising Center, 2010-2012.
Assisted in advising a criminology undergraduate student population of over 900 students about various topics which includes scheduling, liberal studies, and graduation requirements, as well as the distribution of scheduling materials. Assisted in recruitment and retention efforts such as orientation meetings for high school seniors as well as individual meetings with prospective students and parents. Assisted in updating and maintaining the forms for academic probation, daily sign-in, scheduling requirements, and assisted in university required junior reviews.

Graduate Assistant assigned to Dr. Clarence Rohrbaugh, 2009-2010.
Assisted in maintaining faculty relations, video recording sessions with faculty, and in covering courses for instructors.

SERVICE

2012-2013 Secretary for the IUP Criminology Graduate Student Organization
2014-Present Serving as a member of Fairmont State University’s experimental Reflective Practice teaching group.
2014-Present Established and managing the Fairmont State University Criminal Justice Program’s official Twitter account.
2014-Present Serving as a member of the Criminal Justice Graduate Faculty, helping to create and grade the Comprehensive Exams.
2014-Present Serving as a member of the Fairmont State University Common Core Reader Book Committee.
2014 Helped with both early Open Advising for the Fairmont State College of Liberal Arts and the recruitment efforts in November’s Campus Visitation Day.
This, to me, is what makes the advising connection such a critical part of the FSU experience.

I routinely meet with CJ/Psyc students and those considering graduate study in criminal justice or psychology. I have met with numerous students wanting to pursue advanced degrees in forensic psychology and I am usually the one to break the news that Clarice Starling is a fictional character and not a job in real life. I believe I excel as an advisor because I am attentive, available, and hands-on with my approach. I was a first generation student at a large school and felt I received little to no support; I have vowed not to allow my advisees to experience this.

UNIVERSITY COMMITTEE SERVICE

I have served on the IRB Committee for four of my six years at FSU. This is an opportunity for me to see what wonderful research is going on around the campus. I strive to be prompt and thoughtful with my reviews in order to expedite faculty and student research opportunities. The IRB Committee is largely a virtual process, which is helpful because it eliminates the need to convene a large and diverse group of faculty.

I have served on the Admissions and Credits Committee since 2011. I have been active in the discussions and meetings of this committee and feel this experience has helped me as a faculty member to consider fully students with special circumstances. This group meets as needed and that can vary significantly from semester to semester. We have a secure area in Blackboard, which allows members to review and thoughtfully consider petitions prior to the meetings with the students.

I have served on the Graduate Council since 2011. I was brought into this group as a result of taking over as the director of the MS in CJ program and have been on most subcommittees (e.g., committee to discuss/define graduate faculty status, committee to evaluate graduation application protocol) to ensure my program is represented. I have brought several important program changes to the council (e.g., using a writing sample in lieu of the GRE for admissions, moving the program to an online system of delivery, innovating all of the existing curriculum via grant funding, championing student issues, and modifying the curriculum from 36 to 30 hours per HLC mandate. I drafted the responses for the MS in CJ 5-year program review (2012) and volunteered to serve as a reviewer for the 5-year MBA program review (2013). The graduate council meets monthly for at least two hours (sometimes we like to have marathon sessions) and the subcommittees meet as needed.

I served on the Faculty Welfare Committee during the 2013-2014 academic year. During this time. I was afforded an opportunity to serve on subcommittees for addressing issues with instructional technology and making recommendations for improving conditions for adjunct faculty. In addition, we worked on the faculty response to proposed leave policies and initiated a conversation regarding the need to revise the campus smoking policy. This group meets monthly and subcommittees convene as needed and/or work virtually.

I have served as the United Way Campaign Coordinator for social/behavioral sciences each of my years at FSU. I attend kick-off meetings and events and encourage those in my unit to return their pledge cards. I share my experiences with these agencies (many via my private practice work and having my students complete community service) and share with those in my unit the substantial need each agency has.

I was invited to serve on a President’s committee to analyze and suggest improvements for Campus Activities. This was a wonderful experience, as we consulted with students and faculty, compared what we were doing with what was found to be successful at similar institutions, and our final report was instrumental in allowing the President to make some changes with regard to student government and organizations.

I was a MapWorks special contact volunteer from 2009-2011. This was my first experience with retention efforts and I have been interested in and working for this since.

I was involved with the initial start-up of the Campus Collaborative on Recruitment and Retention (CCR) and am excited to get back to work with this committee after a bit of a hiatus over the summer. This involves a collaboration of many faculty and staff across campus who are dedicated to working to improve the overall student experience at FSU. Specifically, I have been involved with the Student Experiences subcommittee.

Cases at the WVU College of Law

Indicate any other activities which have contributed to effective teaching.

I have served as the Director of the Master of Science in Criminal Justice Program since 2011. That entails overseeing all of the administrative duties related to the graduate program, serving on the Graduate Council, being the advisor to all of the graduate students, and supervising the graduate assistants.

I have been involved with and contributed to the proposals to separate from the community college (CRJU became the PCTC discipline and FSU courses were created under CRIM) and this fall I contributed to a major curriculum revision for the undergraduate criminal justice program and authored a substantial curriculum revision for the graduate program.

Given that I came to Fairmont State University from an applied clinical setting, all of my courses have been newly developed the first time I have offered them. I believe there is always room for improvement and that it is important for faculty to evolve with changing trends and technologies. That said, it may be ironic to some that for all the online teaching I do, I am generally not a PowerPoint or technology-heavy instructor in the face-to-face classroom. I still like to make use of the board and believe in engaging the students in discussions and activities. For my online classes I heavily utilize discussions in order to help the students feel connected and to have more direct interaction with them.

Since my arrival at FSU I have had over 15 new course preparations. For the classes I teach regularly, I still believe in modifying the structure and content based on evolutions in the field and feedback from student evaluations. I have been fortunate to have been afforded the opportunity to engage in much training myself (e.g., Quality Matters, Certificate in Online Teaching), which has been invaluable to helping me to improve the content and set-up of my courses. I come from a government background where rubrics are standard (though the term rubric is rarely used), so it is second nature for me to use a standardized process for grading and feedback.

Further, my teaching experience at Argosy University (all online) has been an asset because that position has rigorous standards for online faculty (e.g., being active in the class 5 of 7 days per week without missing two consecutive days, returning grades within 48 hours of assignment submissions), requires several hours of faculty development training annually, and involves direct supervision from a faculty mentor (i.e., someone is actually monitoring your online class at all times). I have taken much from what I have learned from these activities in a continued effort to evolve and improve my teaching at FSU.

I have revised and submitted two of my courses for the current general studies curriculum. This is exciting for me because it allows me an opportunity to interact with students outside the College of Liberal Arts. I have submitted both graduate and undergraduate curriculum proposals for new elective courses. I was able to innovate my own graduate classes with the support of a Strategic Planning Grant and this endeavor was extended to most of the graduate courses via support for other faculty to improve their own graduate courses.
